

Pine River Public Library District

Internet Use Policy

The Pine River Public Library offers public access to the Internet to meet the changing informational, educational, cultural, and recreational needs of a diverse community. Access to the Internet is only one way the library works to meet its goal of improving informational services to the community. The Internet is a worldwide computer network providing an almost unlimited amount of information. Not all information on the Internet is accurate, current, complete, legal or philosophically, morally or aesthetically acceptable to all users.

Although the library staff is able to offer suggestions and answer some questions, they cannot provide in-depth training on Internet and personal computer use except at specially designated times, e.g. classes or one-on-one appointments. Due to scheduling, staff may not always be available for extensive Internet/computer help.

The Following Uses of the Internet are Permitted

Users may access the Internet for research and the acquisition of information to address their educational, vocational, cultural, and recreational needs.

Users may use the Internet for the receipt and transmission of electronic mail (e-mail) as long as they use an e-mail service that will establish and maintain an account for them; the library is unable to manage e-mail accounts for any organizations or individuals.

Note: The library has no control over the information accessed through the Internet and cannot be held responsible for its content. Pine River Public Library is required to provide a technology protection measure (filter) by state and federal regulations due to state law, (CRS 24-90-600).

The following list is not all-inclusive but states prohibited uses of the Internet at the Pine River Library:

Violations

Pine River Policy requests that anyone who believes that there is a violation of acceptable use of the Internet to please direct the information to: it@prlibrary.org

The Digital Millennium Copyright Act of 1998 (the "DMCA") provides recourse for copyright owners who believe that material posted on Internet sites infringes their rights under U.S. copyright law. If you believe in good faith that items, information or other materials appearing on the Service infringes your copyright, you (or your agent) may send Pine River Library's Designated Agent a notice requesting that the item, information or material be removed, or access to it blocked. You can contact Pine River Library's Designated Agent at: it@prlibrary.org.
